

How does it feel to deal every day with a viral infection?

To be honest, I feel like a normal person. I don't perceive any difference between myself and other people.

This pandemic has outlined the important role of healthcare workers: could you describe your relationship with healthcare professionals?

My relationship with healthcare professionals is really close. I feel like I can ask for everything I need. It's a good thing having someone you can rely on.

There is still a stigmatization in our society towards HIV: do you think this could happen also towards COVID-19?

Yes, I think this will probably happen until they find the vaccine and then people will feel less at risk maybe.

What is your biggest fear in regards to this pandemic?

If I ever come into contact with COVID-19, I feel that I won't get through it easily, since I'm already infected by another virus. That's my biggest fear.
